TRUMAN NATIONAL SECURITY PROJECT

Truman National Security Project

Truman Center for National Policy is looking for highly motivated students to serve as undergraduate and graduate fellows who will support our work in national security and foreign policy. Undergraduate and graduate fellows will get exposure to 2000+ leaders in national security from all walks of life (military, government leaders, etc.). This is a unique opportunity to support a dynamic organization, gain valuable experience on a range of issues and non-profit management, and learn from experts in the fields of national security and foreign policy.

FEATURED INTERNSHIPS

Public Policy Intern- Feb. 2022 to May 2022

This unpaid, remote internship offers a unique opportunity for students to work on public policy issues affecting nonprofit organizations throughout Colorado. This role assists the Colorado Nonprofit Association public policy team with analysis of pending bills and regulations, following legislative hearings, development of materials for legislative advocacy, and administrative support. Work will focus primarily on the CO legislative session.

Joseph S. Nye, Jr. National Security Internship and Mentoring Program

Interns work directly with one or more of CNAS' research programs or departments: Communications; Defense; Development; Energy, Economics, and Security; Indo-Pacific Security; Middle East Security; Military, Veterans, and Society; Technology and National Security; and Transatlantic Security. Applicants should familiarize themselves with each department's work through the descriptions below and information available on the CNAS website. Your cover letter should, in addition to outlining your qualifications, explain which research areas or departments most interest you and why. Interns work closely with CNAS staff and are given considerable responsibility.

Research Intern- Defensive Industrial Initiatives Group Spring 2022

The Defense-Industrial Initiatives Group (DIIG) is hiring a research intern for a 35-hour per week, paid position. DIIG provides analysis on the critical issues at the cross-section of the Department of Defense and its industrial base. With a focus on defense acquisition trends, technological innovation, and ongoing reform efforts, DIIG monitors important developments in the global defense industry. Through years of analytical research, DIIG has strengthened its capabilities to draw from large databases and millions of transaction records in order to present information in a clear, meaningful way. DIIG also collaborates with the broader International Security Program by looking at the role that defense acquisition plays in other issue areas such as strategy, budgets, and force structure.
