Spring Events at Korbel: Allyship, Job Search Mini Course, and a Roundtable with Korbel's Professional in Residence

-Korbel Allyship Summit-

May 3, 8am—7pm

Responding to this context and to campus wide requests for a better conceptualization of what it takes to be an effective ally; we are organizing a one-day summit comprised of presentations and workshops which will encourage participants to move from neutral to active allyship. We are inviting our peers from the DU and wider Denver communities to an event where we will build upon our communal understanding of allyship and with a strengths-based approach to increase our individual capacities as allies.

Graduate School Planning Overview & Panel

*Tuesday, May 1, 2018
4pm—5:30pm
The Loft—AAC*

Are you considering graduate school for your post-graduation plans? This session will cover good reasons to attend graduate school right after graduation and reasons to wait. We will also give you an overview of program types, how to research schools, the typical application timeline, and how students finance their degrees. Get tips from a panel of current graduate students on the application process and to learn how grad school compares to an undergraduate degree program.

Anyone considering graduate school is welcome to attend, including undergraduate students as well as graduate students considering another graduate degree.

Over the Horizon Int.—Int. Markets Internship

Deadline: Accepted on Rolling Basis

Over the Horizon, International (OTHI) in Denver, Colorado helps Front Range small- to medium-sized enterprises mitigate the risks of commercial expansion into overseas markets. The consulting firm gathers, synthesizes, and articulates product-specific market intelligence that enables local firms to make informed decisions about which international markets to target for commercial entry.

OTHI offers part-time internships during fall, winter, and spring semesters. Interns at Over the Horizon, International are responsible for assisting the staff in the research and compilation of overseas market analysis reports for firms in the Denver-metro area. These reports are a distillation of a wide range of data across five dimensions of international markets: human, economic, logistics, security, and information. The incumbent will research macroeconomic and microeconomic indicators, infrastructure and commerce considerations, political risk, and other aspects of diverse international markets.
