The World Trade Center Denver and the University of Denver present, “The Pacific Alliance”. The Pacific Alliance, formed in 2012 by Chile, Colombia, México, and Perú, represents one of the most ambitious processes of regional economic integration in decades. The four Alliance countries have Latin America’s most competitive and open economies. With a market of around 214 million people, the Pacific Alliance is an ideal platform to encourage and facilitate joint ventures, entrepreneurship, SME support, environmental protection, academic exchanges, innovation, foreign investment and cultural cooperation.

Moderated by: Kezia McKeague, Director of Government Relations for Council of the Americas

Speakers:

- The Honorable Elías Ancízar Silva, Cónsul General of Colombia
- The Honorable Carlos Bello, Cónsul General of México in Denver
- The Honorable Eduardo Barandiarán y Barandiarán, Cónsul General of Perú in Denver
