Community Language Institute Spring Language Classes
The Center for World Languages & Cultures is proud to announce the spring class offerings as part of the Community Language Institute. These classes that are taught in the evening and provide practice settings for cultural exposure are ideal for graduate students trying to learn a new language or brush up on their current skills for the language proficiency test or for lifelong learners who want to learn a language. Spring classes start March 21st, 2016. Class descriptions and registration information is available online. If you have any questions, contact cwlc@du.edu.

Reminder Regarding Official Policies
This is a friendly reminder that your fellow students are not an official source of policy and that consulting with them in lieu of established departmental and institutional policy is highly problematic and not advised. If you have questions about degree requirements after having consulted the bulletin/handbook that governs your particular admit year and/or the Graduate Policies and Procedures Bulletin, please consult your degree director and/or the Director of Graduate Student Affairs for guidance and clarification.

MA/MSc in International and World History at Columbia University and the London School of Economics

The world is more interconnected than ever. Join leading historians to study how we arrived how the world became more interconnected than ever. Through an innovative curriculum includes a two-year sequence of reading and research seminars, interdisciplinary electives, and intensive foreign language training, this program provides the students with new frameworks and tools to understand the transnational forces that have shaped our world: migration, trade, war, technology, epidemic disease, and environmental change. Students will spend one year in New York and one year in London and receive a Master’s degree.

Students spend the first year in New York and the second year in London and receive Master’s degrees from both institutions. Immersed in the vibrant intellectual communities of two of the world’s greatest cities, graduates are prepared for careers in government, journalism, think tanks, NGOs, and academia.

The program offers summer research fellowships and financial aid opportunities.

Early application deadline is January 15, 2016. Final application deadline is March 15, 2016. To learn more, please click here.
