

DU Amache Project Summer Internship

June 10 – July 14, 2018

The University of Denver will be holding a field school in archaeology and museum studies at Amache and the Amache museum in 2018. To encourage community participation in the field school, an internship has been created for a high school or college student whose family experienced internment, preferably at Amache. Stipend or tuition waiver available to the student chosen for the internship.

Highlights of the internship:

- *Opportunity to work on-site at Amache and Amache museum
- *Training in archaeology field methods and museum practices
- *Hands-on work with historic objects and archival materials associated with Amache
- *Work with other students, former internees, and site visitors

Applications accepted until the internship is filled
