

From ▶ Tyler Hemry <themry@gmail.com>
Sent Tuesday, March 21, 2006 9:22 pm
To dsaitta@du.edu
Subject Former student needs a book recommendation

Professor Saitta

I was in your Ancient Worlds class my freshman year about 5 years ago and could use some help. I remember really enjoying the topic of "entoptic phenomenon", can you please recommend some great books that pertain to that subject. Also, upon graduation in 2005 I moved to St. Louis and was wondering if you could recommend any really good books about the Mound Builders.

In addition I remember you teaching about a group of Ancient Americans (possibly the mound builders) in which the higher ups distributed food in pots that were specially decorated. You made a point of saying how the pots were a sort of multi-fold manipulation. I would really appreciate it if you could give me the name of these pots or some sort of information I could use to find out more about them.

Thank you for your time and congratulations on making the "101 Most Dangerous Professors in America" list. I have to say I never felt you particularly threatening, sorry.

Sincerely
Tyler Hemry